The Paris Olympics are being promoted as one of the most sustainable Games ever. The organizers are emphasizing environmental responsibility, with plans to use 95% existing or temporary venue and to limit the carbon footprint. Renewable energy sources will power the event, and there is a focus on public transportation and minimizing waste.

The Games will incorporate urban settings in iconic Paris locations, such as beach volleyball near the Eiffel Tower and marathon swimming in the Seine River. The opening ceremony will be held along the Seine River, a unique departure from the traditional stadium setting. Paris 2024 will be the first Olympics to feature an equal number of male and female athletes, highlighting the Game's commitment to gender equality.
